Dear Josh,

A note of New Year greeting

As enclosure (1) will indicate, the history of CASBS is beginning to come into focus, and to raise many intriguing questions about the larger course of intellectual life / philanthropy in the past two decades.

No real nibbles from either Smithsonian or Stanford: I'm afraid they both see me as too marginal to their concerns in terms of background and previous experience.

Two positions where I am a more plausible candidate are: – NSF / Director of Division of Social and Economic Science. I have taken the liberty of citing you as a referee (enclosure (2)), so they may be in touch. However Federal salaries are such that I'm not sure I can afford this move, with children's college fees looming

Editor of Science: something for which I think I really am fitted by background and experience. I don't know David Hamburg personally — your direct word to him would be very powerful, and appreciated. With warm thanks

As ever Arnold
